

Some years ago, I started having trouble falling asleep. I was used to it taking about half an hour, but now it was up to three hours every day. Eventually, I turned to audiobooks to fill this time. It did not reduce the time I took to fall asleep, but it made it a more pleasant time. Eventually, I stumbled upon "The Way of Kings", and decided to give it a try. It immediately became my favourite book, and you are a major reason for that. After about a year, I finished most of Sanderson's books. The next logical step was to search for more books narrated by you, and so I ended up listening to "The Wheel of Time". I am currently halfway through the second book, and enjoy it about as much as "The Stormlight Archive". Thank you for keeping me busy during all those hours I spent hating myself for not being able to sleep. For keeping me from having sinister thoughts, and making me enjoy some amazing stories instead. For putting a smile on my face with your amazing voices while experiencing the darkest time of my life.
