I've been listening to audiobooks for about 7 years now and was instantly hooked from the start. I've never had much time to sit to read and always thought I didn't care for books that much. Since becoming a listener of books I've amassed a digital library of 96 books and have a listening time of 2 months 26 days 6 hours 38 minutes and counting. Audiobooks have completely reinvigorated my love for fiction and am making up for lost time. I listened to a lot of books narrated by Victor Bevine before a friend recommended the Wheel of Time series to me. Michael and Kate transform the experience from a simple book reading to a fully involved performance. The way both of you bring every character life requires so much talent and dedication. Thank you so much for all the time and hard work and I pray Brandon Sanderson can finish the Stormlight Archive before you retire.
