Audiobooks are such a wonderful resource and one that I wish had been more readily available when I was younger. Now that streaming is possible, I have been able to turn family car rides into adventures, fueled by active imaginations and skilled storytelling. For myself, I have been able to transform long commutes into something that I now look forward to, especially since I have discovered your voices bringing a most beloved series to life; The Wheel of Time. I genuinely can't wait until both of my children are old enough to listen along with me because I know that they will be swept away by your voices as I have. In short, audiobooks have made books more accessible to a wider audience and for younger readers, removed the fear of not being able to pronounce new or difficult words. Audiobooks can be a great confidence booster for a timid reader and anything that encourages reading is a plus. Thank you for all of your work!
